DE VALERA IS DUE TO MEET LLOYD GEORGE ON THURSDAY

Sinn Fein Is Seeking Neutral Chairman At Conference

PREMIER MAY ACT

Meanwhile, Belfast Rests After Week-end Battle Worst "In History"

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 11.—The Irish truce was inaugurated in Dublin at noon today with general rejoicing. The ships in port sounded their sirens, and the auxiliary police, the "Black and Tans," are walking in the streets, unarmed and mixing with the people. Armored cars and military lorries are conspicuously absent.

London, July 11.—Mr. Eamonn de Valera has replied to Mr. Lloyd George, fixing the date of the conference at Downing Street for Thursday.

Mr. de Valera and Mr. Arthur Griffith, Mr. Austin Stack, Mr. R. C. Barton, all members of the Imperial House of Commons will constitute the Irish delegation to confer with the Prime Minister.

The question as to who is likely to be Chairman of the Conference is at present intriguing politicians.

It is understood that Sinn Fein favors a neutral chairman, but the question may be solved according to the prevalent belief in authoritative quarters by Mr. Lloyd George acting as chairman at the formal opening of the conference, and General Smuts as deputy chairman, the latter presiding at the subsequent deliberative proceedings.

Advices from Belfast state that the town is quiet today. The fighting there during the week-end was the worst in the city's history.

It began with a Sinn Fein attack on the police, in which one of the latter was killed and two wounded.

Subsequently, police raids unearthed the Sinn Fein arsenal which they captured with a bayonet charge after a fierce battle between hundreds of police and snipers on the roofs.

After a short lull, the "battle" was renewed on Sunday between Catholics and Protestants, and reached its height in the afternoon, when the whole city was involved. The sound of machine guns, rifles, revolvers and bombs and the sight of hurrying ambulances and armored cars recalled a battlefield.

An "Orange" procession appeared on the Royal Avenue in the midst of the fighting and marched without wavering under a storm of bullets. A number of the processionists, with revolvers in their hands, rushed up the side streets to fight the Sinn Fein snipers.

Forty-eight houses and business premises occupied by Nationalists were destroyed by incendiarism. The firemen were hampered in their duties by the snipers.

Later.

Incendiaries have set fire to extensive stables and stores in the center of Belfast. The curfew order will continue in force tonight and tomorrow, owing to the disturbed state of the city, and military are replacing the police.

WHY SMUTS WENT

(U. S. Naval Radio)

London, July 10.—In a speech to the House of Commons today Lloyd George declared that General Smuts went to Ireland at the express invitation of De Valera.

Upon his return to London General Smuts was received by King George, who was happy to learn of the more hopeful turn of affairs in the Irish situation.

It is authentically asserted that Sinn Fein will accede to the proposal of an all-Ireland assembly, in union with the Ulster parliament abandoning Irish independence. None of the dominion premiers will attend the Irish conference in London, to which De Valera and Sir James Craig have been officially invited.

RICE CONFERENCE

Directors of the Chinese Ratepayers' Association held an executive session yesterday afternoon to discuss the steps to be taken in negotiating with the Council over the conditions of the rice shops' licenses.

British Social Leader Latest To Enter Business Field

Lady Poynter, wife of Sir Ambrose Poynter, noted British architect who recently entered the business field as a house decorator, according to reports from London. Lady Poynter declared that her scheme is not the whim of a society woman, but a solid business proposition. She has established her place in Beauchamp place, London, and will work under the name "Toucan." She explained that she had studied the business for the past two years.

Chinese Favor Foreign Rule In Ichang City

Looting By Troops Is Best Argument Toward Control By Foreigners

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Ichang, July 7.—There has been much agitation amongst the Chinese of this port for the establishment of an International Settlement here. The members of the foreign community are just as vitally interested in this movement, and so a public meeting was held on 5th inst., at which the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

(1). Whereas Ichang has been looted on two occasions with an interval of little over six months, and as much damage was done to the property of the merchants and inhabitants of this city, this public meeting of the foreign community expresses its deep sympathy with the merchants and others who have suffered.

(It was agreed that a copy of this resolution should be sent to the Chinese Chamber of Commerce.)

(2). Whereas this city of Ichang has been looted on two occasions with an interval of little over six months, and the depredators on both occasions were the troops of the Chinese Government, and on both occasions there was much loss of foreign property, while foreign life was placed in jeopardy, it is hereby resolved that this public meeting of the foreign community of Ichang condemn these outrages, and request the foreign Ministers in Peking to take steps to see that soldiers are not allowed to be stationed within a radius of 30 miles from this port. If it should happen that troops require to pass through this port that they be disembarked on the side of the river opposite to the city, and not be permitted to remain longer than 36 hours.

WANT SETTLEMENT

(3). Whereas this city of Ichang has been looted on two occasions with an interval of little over six months, and the depredators on both occasions were the troops of the Chinese Government, and as this is sufficient evidence to prove that the Chinese Government cannot control its troops, and as on both occasions foreign property was considerably damaged, and foreign lives were endangered, it is hereby resolved that this public meeting of the foreign community of Ichang requests the Ministers in Peking to take steps to secure an International Settlement at this port.

It was resolved that the Second and Third Resolutions be submitted to the Consuls of the countries represented at this

Rifle, Not Words, Turneth Away Savage Lolo Wrath

By Bruce Hopper

"DON'T tote your hat in Far Western China" is the playful peace-on-earth advice handed out gratus by authorities on the art of getting on in the wilderness.

"You will invite attack, and only get into trouble." Maybe! But he who accepts such warning as orthodox jungle gospel deserves to lose his breakfast, his money belt, and his "face." And he generally does, if he gets off the beaten track in the mountain regions of Western China with only such philosophy for armament.

"Face" here is visible strength. If you haven't got it you go to the wall, or over the cliff. To force a passage through sections in an uproar over tribal and internecine war you must command prestige in terms understood by savages. The gentle barbarians are mad for the spoils of caravans, and have only one god they really fear, and that is the naked rifle.

The sweet communion of persuasion may work with some of God's creatures, even with a Missouri mule. There are stories of brave travelers turning away savage wrath, and staying the finger on the bowstring, by calmly baring their tender breasts to the speeding arrow. That fortitude is lost on the unpoetic tribes of China. Their quality of mercy is rather strained.

SOFT WORD USELESS

Let the apostle of the soft word, gently whispered in tones of distress, try out his technique close to Thibet. He will see his packs rifled by brigands, he will pay extortionate tolls to soldiers on the roads, and he will curse his former religion for its inadequacy in soothing the savage breast.

For existence west of the Min river is only permissible and possible by the rule of the strong. The elimination of the unfit goes on with the terrible certitude of nature's law. The elements of primitive society which prey upon trade and village life, the ex-soldier turned brigand, the tribesman of the mountain fastness, the coolie addicted to petty thievery, all concentrate their vulturous ingenuity upon the passing foreigner, the stranger within the gates.

The tribesmen are as keen over rifles as the American government for oil privileges in the mandate regions. An instance cited against carrying weapons was the unfortunate affair of Lt. Brookes, who attempted to cross the upper neck of the Lolo country in 1908.

Lolos materialised for his evening camp fire entertainment, and asked the honor of inspecting his gun. He replied by showing how it worked, killing a dozen wild men. He would have held out had his ammunition lasted. His head came out of that unexplored country at Chia Chiao Ting, and his body at Hull Chou, having traveled 200 miles.

THE FIGHTING PARSON

Instances more in line of ordinary travel are those which concern missionaries, who are robbed nearly every time they take to the road. A few months ago four sisters of the Franciscan Mission de Marie, proceeding from Yunnanfu to their station in Szechuen, were robbed of all their extra robes. Among the loot also was a golden chalice, being brought as a gift from the Paris convent to the Ning Yuan Fu mission.

In March Father Savin, of Talifu, was detained for several days, in the mountains, and stripped of all his belongings. He was then only two days march from Yunnanfu, the capital of the province.

A warmer reception awaited the thirty Lolos who attacked Father Dugast of Fulin, Szechuen. The tribesmen broke from ambush, scraping their war whoop which is the dreaded cry of the Chien Ch'ang valley, and were met by well directed shots from the worthy father's brace of pistols. They carried off eight wounded, and left him the field.

MUST RULE CARAVAN

The traveler must be supreme master of his caravan. If he lets the mafoos get away with a bluff about the road, or the amount each mule may carry, he will find the cook selling his Worcestershire sauce to some village chief, or disposing of his precious cans of bully beef to a passing merchant.

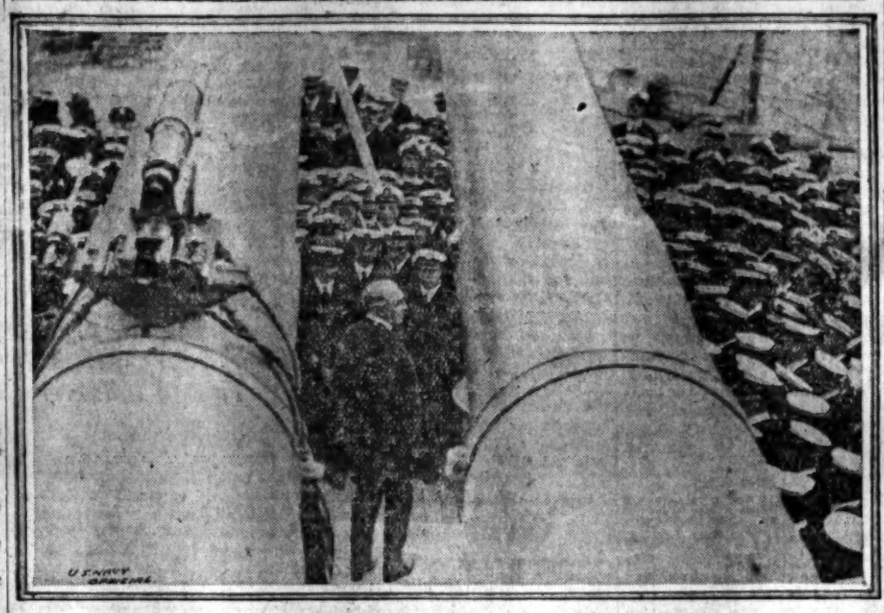
When one's own servants do not fear him, the Shans on the river, the Lysus in the caves, and even the Chinese magistrates will hear about it, and act accordingly. Camped in open country, or deep in the Yangtsze trough, he must guard his stores with a rifle. Logic and kindness are both ineffective when a strong party of assailants want to pillage.

The magistrates offer the traveler military escorts, but that is generally a costly luxury in the way of "tea" money and presents. The uniform of the soldier does not sufficiently disguise the instincts of the brigand who wears it.

Perhaps the greatest nuisance of the trail is the toll stations which hold forth every few miles. Soldiers, operating under the provincial flag, exact two or three hundred cash per mule load, but are not supposed to demand payment from foreigners. The ever necessary rifle is often needed to remind them of that little tradition.

GROUND ARMS! HARDING URGES WORLD'S POWERS

Under Navy's Guns President Declares Hope Of Peace



STANDING beneath the fourteen-inch guns of the flagship Pennsylvania, President Harding is shown addressing the officers of the Atlantic Fleet in Hampton Roads, Va. In his speech the President said: "The United States does not want anything on earth that does not rightfully belong to us; no territories, no payment of tribute. But we do want that which is righteously our own, and, by the eternal, we mean to have it. You of the navy are the first line of defense. I hope you may never be compelled to fire a gun in war." President Harding now has gone even further than to hope for peace and in today's dispatches takes the first step leading to world disarmament.

Union Schedule Not Suited To Climate Of Shanghai

By Lucie McCormick

WE have heard of people who turn in fire-alarms for amusement, of humorists who dress as ghosts to frighten their little sisters into hysterics, and of amateur jokesmiths who drive friends into illness by concerted remarks about how badly they are looking, but to our mind none of these compare in achievement with the practical jokers who first induced their friends to settle in Shanghai.

The present attempts of the weather to get a rise out of the thermometer prove that it must have been a practical joke. The first foreigner who ever drifted to this coast and then tried to induce others to live out here must have been writing to his mother-in-law.

Or else he was trying to get even with the boys for an initiation stunt perpetrated when he first joined the lodge. Since then thousands of other innocents have fallen for the witticism, and it is only after a bout or two with the climate that they realise their role as victims of practical joke.

It must be conceded that the Shanghai climate is the most hardworking in the world. In its endeavor to please all tastes, it runs the complete gamut from Siberia to Bombay. Its efforts to take the minds of the residents off their other troubles are so unremitting, for when it can't think of anything else to do, it arranges a dust-storm or a typhoon. Those who doubt its versatility must remember that only six months ago the residents were sleeping in fur coats and thinking that St. Lawrence on his gridiron had a pretty comfortable time of it, after all.

HERE IS THE DOPE

For the benefit of those who are experiencing the heat for the first time, we offer at reduced rates several pieces of information gleaned from the city's pioneers.

1. July is the worst month.
2. August is the worst month.
3. The first summer is always the hardest to bear.
4. You don't mind the first summer so much, but you'll find that you become more susceptible to the heat with each succeeding year.
5. The climate is changing. Last summer was comparatively cool.
6. Last summer was the hottest in twenty-five years.

Information on the climate is also as accurate and consistent as the various stories we have heard regarding the United States Customs regulations.

We don't know for certain, but it is our theory that the Shanghai heat was the achievement of spirits who were commissioned to prepare an appropriate climate for the next world and who felt the need of a little preliminary practice. In order to create a new effect they melted some invisible pitch and poured it into the atmosphere.

The result is that sticky, clogging effect which causes the population to breathe as if it were suffering from adenoids.

SUN NOT ACCESSORY

Another unique feature of the Shanghai heat is the fact that its permeating quality makes a shady spot as hot as a place under the direct rays of the sun. Apparently the sun has very little to do with it, the heat seeming to come from great ovens that are conscientiously stoked both night and day.

Many are the tales told by suffering foreigners of spending the night wrapped in wet Turkish towels, of moist blankets hung in doorways to cool the air a little by evaporation, and of sleeping under electric fans regardless of the cold that is almost certain to materialise next day.

Making their debut along with the hot weather are the punkah-coolies who indulge in an open-mouthed doze while working the strings with their feet; the fat yellow babies who spend the day paddling in tiny bath-tubs at their doorsteps; the vendors who dispense weak sherbet in egg-cups; and patient Chinese fathers who carry ailing children up and down the streets all night, trying to revive them by a bit of non-existent fresh air.

The chief symptom of Summer among the foreign population is a wearing down of nerves that induces catty remarks across the boarding-house table and sarcastic comments on the ebb and flow of the butter. Men and girls with features that seem to be in a state of dissolution continue to dance at the cafes, mopping their faces frantically between encores and fanning each other with soggy handkerchiefs.

INSIDE STUFF

A young man who would like to see his fiancee as she really appears when the amah brings up her breakfast in the morning is advised to take her to a dance during the period of the Great Heat. After the first number, her make-up will run away in unobstructed rivulets and he will glimpse for the first time the topography of the underlying country.

Summer is the time when the unwary young women who prepared a hot weather wardrobe of silk and pongee discover that these fabrics have the heating qualities of a suit of chain mail. It is also the period when Modesty packs her trunk and moves to a missionary conference at Kuling or somewhere, leaving the city free to sit gasping by windows in its night attire and to scorn any such formality as pulling down the shade when preparing for the usual hours of wakefulness.

Heat, like seasickness, is a powerful agent for democracy. It strikes coolie and taipan, amah and society queen alike, for though one class may have a few more methods of alleviation, it has no possible means of complete escape.

The whole city is caught in a common suffering, which each must bear with whatever philosophy he can discover in his constitution and bye-laws.

On shipboard many a haughty dowager who sails up the gangplank like a new admiral about to take possession of a flagship is next seen huddled in a steamer chair with her hat over one eye and a delicate ottled green tint spreading her complexion.

Likewise many a Shanghai lady who went through the social season under full steam may be observed now with hair straggling over a damp forehead and with as much freshness as a spring hat that has fallen in the Whangpoo.

The heat is a wonderful leveller.

We have heard many recipes offered, ranging from constant iced drinks to spending the day in the bath-tub, but to our mind the only sure way of keeping cool in Shanghai is to take the next boat bound for Baffin's Bay.

Harington Not To Meet Kemal Unless Demands Are Deemed Absurd

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, July 12.—According to a Constantinople despatch, the Greeks advanced in the direction of Ismidt. The inhabitants of the town, aided by regular troops, ambushed and surrounded the Greeks, who lost 400 men killed and wounded.

London, July 11.—The British representative at Constantinople has informed Mustapha Kemal that in view of the very absurd conditions laid down by the Nationalists, it is impossible for General Harington to proceed farther as regards the suggested meeting with him (Mustapha Kemal).

BRITAIN AND JAPAN FAVOR WAR'S END BY HELP OF U.S.

Some Questions Must Be Settled First For America

British Idea Favors A Control Over The Personnel

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, July 11.—It is not anticipated that the Conference to discuss President Harding's proposal will be arranged immediately, as the most delicate ground must preliminarily be covered by diplomatic methods in order to avoid the risk of ultimate disagreement.

It is understood that the plans so far discussed by which disarmament can be effected are based on the findings reached at the Hague Conference before the war.

The British idea rather favors control over personnel than the limitation of building or a system of equivalent budgets, but all these points are liable to modification in the course of the soundings already begun.

One of the chief reasons why Great Britain was anxious that the United States should take the initiative in calling a conference of this character was that there would be a greater likelihood of the Senate ratifying any resultant treaty than if the proposal came from abroad.

It is understood that the Government regards the inclusion in the discussion of Far Eastern problems as a vitally important preliminary to any disarmament plans, and that the settlement of the Yap question before the aforementioned discussion appears to be probable.

LONDON IS HAPPY

London, July 11.—General satisfaction prevails in London at President Harding's proposal for a conference at Washington. President Harding's note was received at the American Embassy yesterday and was sent to the American Ambassador, Colonel Harvey. The latter, who was in the country, then proceeded to "Chequers," the Prime Minister's country residence, and saw Mr. Lloyd George.

The Cabinet considered the matter this morning and the Imperial Conference this afternoon. There is great activity at the Foreign Office.

ASK FRENCH IDEA

Paris, July 11.—The American Charge d'Affaires here today visited the Foreign Office, in order, it is said, to ascertain the attitude of the French Government towards President Harding's invitation.

LLOYD GEORGE SPEAKS

London, July 11.—President Harding's invitation to an international conference on armaments and Far Eastern problems and the renewal of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance formed the subject of an important statement by the Prime Minister in the House of Commons today. The American Ambassador, Colonel Harvey, and the Chinese Minister, Dr. Wellington Koo, were present in the Diplomatists' Gallery.

At the outset of his speech Mr. Lloyd George explained the reason why the Anglo-Japanese Treaty remained in forbe for another year, and in doing so confirmed the statement cabled by Reuter at the beginning of this month. (The Treaty was not denounced last year. The Lord Chancellor reversing the previous decision of the British Law Officers, ruled that the Anglo-Japanese Note of July, 1920, to the League of Nations did not constitute a denunciation of the Treaty.)

Continuing, he said that both parties to the Treaty desired that the Agreement between them should be brought into complete harmony with the Covenant of the League of Nations.

Disarmament Plan Of President Harding

The whole British Empire, he declared, welcomed with the utmost pleasure the wise and courteous initiative that had been taken by President Harding (cheers). The world had been looking for such a lead, and he was confident that the House would esteem it an act of far seeing statesmanship and whole-heartedly wish it success. No effort would be lacking to make it so on the part of the Empire, which fully shared the liberal and progressive spirit that inspired it.

The Prime Minister recalled that in replying to questions in the House last Thursday, he had said that his ability to make a statement today on the present position of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance would depend on the replies received from the United States, Japan and China. In this connection he mentioned that the conversations which had passed between Lord Curzon and the representatives of the United States, Japan and China were the result of the discussions of the Imperial Cabinet.

He was very glad to say that the views of the United States, which were received yesterday, were extremely satisfactory. The Chinese Government had also sent a favorable reply. No formal reply had yet been received from Japan, but there was good reason to hope that it would be in the same sense. The discussion in the Imperial Cabinet had dealt with the broad lines of Imperial policy in the Pacific and the Far East, especially in regard to the Anglo-Japanese Agreement, the future of China and the bearing of both questions on Anglo-American relations.

Dealing with the question of renewing the Anglo-Japanese Agreement, Mr. Lloyd George stated that the League of Nations had been notified that wherever the Covenant of the League and the Agreement conflicted the terms of the Covenant should prevail.

The broader discussion of Far Eastern and Pacific policy, to which the Imperial Cabinet then turned, showed a general agreement on the main lines of the course which the Imperial Cabinet desired to pursue. They were all convinced that the peace and well-being of the world depended on friendly Anglo-American co-operation more than on any other single factor. They also desired to maintain the existing close friendship and co-operation between Great Britain and Japan.

The greatest merit of that valuable friendship was that it harmonised the influences and activities of the two greatest Asiatic Powers, thus constituting a safeguard to the well-being of the British Empire and peace in the East. We also aimed at preserving the open door in China, and giving the Chinese people every opportunity for peaceful progress and development. Furthermore, we desired to safeguard our own vital interests in the Pacific and to preclude any competition in naval armaments among the Pacific Powers.

WANT VIEWS OF ALL

All the representatives of the Empire had agreed that our standpoint should be communicated with complete frankness to the United States, Japan and China, with the object of securing an exchange of views which might lead to more formal discussions and conference.

Lord Curzon had, accordingly, last week communicated the views of the Imperial Cabinet to the American and Japanese Ambassadors and the Chinese Minister, and asked them for the views of their respective Governments, and had also expressed the strong hope that an exchange of views might pave the way to conferences on the problems of the Pacific and Far East.

Replying to a question, the Prime Minister stated that China, in the negotiations with regard to the Pacific, would be treated as an independent Power, which she was.

A copy of the notification containing the important decision with regard to a possible conflict between the terms of the Anglo-Japanese Agreement and the Covenant of the League of Nations, as mentioned in the foregoing speech, has been published. It shows that the document was signed by Baron Hayashi and Lord Curzon and addressed to the League of Nations on the 7th instant.

JAPAN APPROVES

London, July 12.—The official representatives of Japan here have warmly approved President Harding's invitation, and have emphatically welcomed the invitation given to China.

Mr. Hughes, the Australian Prime Minister, hailed the Conference joyously. He declared that the renewal of the Anglo-Japanese Treaty in a form acceptable to all concerned was now on a fair way to being realised, and if all desired disarmament, it must come. Mr. Meighen, the Canadian Prime Minister, and Mr. Massey, Prime Minister of New Zealand, expressed similar sentiments.

LLOYD GEORGE TO GO

London, July 12.—It is authoritatively declared that Mr. Lloyd George will go to Washington to attend the disarmament conference, which is expected to be held in the autumn. Some Dominion Premiers, however, favor a preliminary conference before they depart, to discuss the Pacific question particularly, and express the opinion that this would pave the way for the disarmament conference in Washington. Conceivably this may fit in with President Harding's ideas.

MYSTERY VEILS WOMAN'S DEATH; HUSBAND IS HELD

Wife Of Greek Found In Country Off Woosung Road

A Greek subject, Theodore Georgacoupoulos, is in custody and will appear in the French Court today in connection with the death of his wife, which occurred yesterday under mysterious circumstances in the country between Shanghai and Woosung.

According to details available last night, Georgacoupoulos and his wife went yesterday morning by tram to the end of the Yangtszepoo line, then took rickshas to a spot near the toll gate on the road to Woosung, dismounted there and walked toward the river, through the reeds. This was sometime between 10 and 11 o'clock.

Shortly afterwards Chinese in the neighborhood noticed the woman lying upon the ground and saw her husband proceeding out into the river in a Chinese boat which he had hailed.

Chinese police who were notified called upon the boatman to return and took the man into custody, notifying the International Settlement police. The body of the woman was removed to the mortuary.

No marks of violence were evident and the man declared that when he left her to take the boat she was apparently all right. One theory is that she may have suffered a sunstroke. An examination and inquest will be held today.

Grand Opera

Lakme, last night's offering of the Russian Grand Opera Company at the Lyceum, furnished a delightful night's entertainment of simple opera, pretty music, pleasant voices and appropriate scenic effects.

The music of the opera border on the beautiful; the principal numbers are exquisite compositions—lovely in idea and execution.

Miss Kasanskaya, who sang Juliet in Romeo and Juliet was the lead, with Busanovsky, the Don Jose of the company's Carmen, enacting the leading male role. Both were in exceptionally fine voice. Pantileef and Gorlenko as Nilakantha, Lakme's father, and Frederick, Gerald's officer friend added much to the production.

Tonight will see the second appearance of Mme. Cherkaskaia, the Petrograd prima dona, in "The Demon."

Fight Between Laundry Guilds Brought To End

The controversy between the two rival laundry guilds was brought to a conclusion in the Mixed Court yesterday with the submission to the court of an agreement between the parties.

The action was brought by the Shanghai Laundry Guild against the "Shanghai Laundry-Men's Guild," following the publication by the latter of a list of regulations to govern prices and all dealings with patrons. The plaintiff organisation, represented by Mr. P. M. Linebarger, contended that the "Laundry-Men's" guild, which is of recent origin, had no authority to make such publication and asked an injunction.

By the agreement handed into court the new organisation promises to abide by the articles of the older guild and to refrain from further publications.

Urges Indians To Wear Own Cottons To Aid Industry

(Reuter's Service)

Bombay, July 11.—Mr. M. Gandhi, the Indian Nationalist leader, is now appealing to dealers in foreign cloth to cease importing and thus revive hand spinning and hand weaving in India.

Engagement

CHEN—SUNG

The engagement was announced on the evening of Monday, July 11, of Prof. Nelson S. Chen of the University of Nanking, and Miss Anne Sung of the McTyeire High School, Shanghai, at a dinner given at the home of Mr. Chen, 541 North Honan Road, Shanghai. Miss Sung is from Hangchow, and is a graduate of the Baldwin Girls' High School, Nanchang. Mr. Chen is a Shanghai-born Cantonese.

Demonstrate Fire Extinguisher

The wonderful effectiveness of the "Kyl-Fyre" fire extinguisher was demonstrated in a number of ways yesterday at the Public Recreation Ground, West Gate, in the presence of members of the local Chinese and foreign press and of the local fire departments.

Mr. A. E. Pengelly, representing the "Kyl-Fyre" Limited, Eastbourne, and his staff gave the demonstration to the satisfaction of the many spectators, including several ladies. By the simple throwing of the contents of the tubes, a mixture of pink powder, it was shown that fires could be brought under control by the extinguisher with ease.

Kiangsu Tuchun Asks Money For His Troops

Tuchun Chi Shih-yuan of Kiangsu has telegraphed to Peking for more military expenses. He stated that he had already advanced over $1,000,000 for his troops. The province spends $11,000,000 yearly on military expenses.

Export Credit Bill Already Is Working

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 11.—On the occasion of the House of Commons passing the third reading of the Bill extending the Government's export credits scheme throughout the Empire, with the exception of India (where ineffectual protests against exclusion have been raised) and the British possessions in the Far East, Sir Philip Lloyd-Graeme (Director of Overseas Trade) stated that the scheme was already being applied. One contract alone exceeding £2,000,000 had been provisionally signed, and there had been a large number of small applications.

Chinese Favor Foreign Rule In Ichang City

meeting with the request that they be forwarded to their respective Ministers.

Steamers are now coming and going with very little cargo, as the mutiny and looting of the town has killed trade. Native merchants have been practically ruined. They say it is simply impossible for them to pay the accounts that are due to the compradores of the foreign firms, and for indirect losses there is no redress nor indemnity.

The people are now becoming more settled, but business has not been resumed, and most of the shops are still closed, or half-closed. The consular body has been doing everything possible to keep the town clear of passing troops, and has insisted on their being taken to villages beyond the town. There have been rumors of looting from these villages, but they are only rumors. The officials are also showing some desire to search out some of the looters. A passer-by would have been struck on Monday by seeing a beheaded man lying on a vacant piece of ground. On investigation, it was learned that he had been found with loot in his possession, and, as he was a member of the bodyguard of the magistrate, he was taken out and beheaded. The body was left exposed as a warning to all who saw it.

SHOOT DESERTER

A further execution took place today, but at a different place; and this time it was a deserter who was shot.

One had thought that the firing on steamers had been put a stop to but yesterday it was learned that the Loongmow had been fired at on her last trip to Chungking.

She was passing a boat which had been moving down river, when some fifteen shots were fired at the steamer from the boat, which was carrying troops. Representations have been made to the General, but it is thought likely that he will try to wriggle out of it, by declaring that it is now impossible to find the soldiers responsible.

Kobe Strikers Raid Dockyard

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Kobe, July 12.—A clash occurred at the Mitsubishi dockyard yesterday when two thousand strikers forced the gates, destroyed the guardboxes and overpowered the guards. A number of persons were injured on both sides.

Incensed at the refusal of their demands, employes of the Electricity Department surrounded the houses of Mr. Kasahara, the factory manager, and Mr. Nishimura, the General Manager. Mr. Kasahara's house was set on fire and a policeman who interfered was badly beaten. Reinforcements arrived later and four of the leaders were arrested and taken in a launch to the station, thus avoiding the angry mob.

The Minister of War has ordered thirty gendarmes to be sent to the Mitsubishi dockyards. The police, who up to the present have refrained from interfering with the strikers, are now becoming active.

The singing and parading of ten thousand strikers at the Kawasaki dockyards frightened a cart horse, which broke loose and, rushing through the crowd, killed one and injured ten.

British Officers Meet Death When Afghans Revolt

(Reuter's Service)

Simla, July 11.—According to a communique, a line repairing party was fired upon at Palosina on June 29. A company of Punjabis with Lewis guns and an armored car were sent in pursuit from Jandola but were held up and the British were forced to retire. The movement was carried out in an orderly manner. The enemy, now strongly reinforced, thereupon charged but were driven back with grenades. The troops eventually reached Jandola, but owing to the close nature of the heavy fighting our casualties were heavy, including Lieut.-Colonel Sherlock, Captain Schneider and fifteen Indians of other ranks killed, one British officer and two Indians wounded.

Lift Injunction Against Yunnan Funds Held Here

Funds of the Yunnan government were the subject of discussion in the Mixed Court yesterday when an injunction restraining the Asia Banking Corporation for making paymen: on a check for Tls. 162,051.7: was ordered dissolved by Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Yui, providing the holder of the check puts up $80,000 shop security.

The funds involved are part of a sum sent to Shanghai during the peace conference here by Tang Chi-yao, then chief of the Yunnan forces. The amount was $600,000, which was converted into yen and which now amounts to more than $1,225,000, owing to the shift in exchange. The money was sent to Miao Chia-shou, Yunnan delegate to the conference. When Tang left the province he consulted with the provincial authorities and last month representatives of the Yunnan assembly, Yunnan civil governor, of the chief commanding and of Tang himself arrived here and arranged with Miao for the disposal of the funds.

It was agreed that $1,000,000 was to revert to the Yunnan government and that the remainder was to be divided equally to representatives of the Yunnan troops in Kwangtung and of the Yunnan troops in Hunan. The check for Tls. 162,051 was turned over by Miao to Lee Hung-lung, representing Tang and the Hunan troops. Since Miao thereafter could not be located Liang Su, the other representative interested, applied for an injunction and when the check was presented at the Asia bank it could not be negotiated. It was also asked that the check be deposited in the court and that the court cash it and divide the sum. The petitioner was represented by Messrs. J. Em. Lemiere, Fessenden and Holcomb and Lee by Messrs. White-Cooper Master and Harris. The application for dissolution of the injunction was made by Mr. R. F. C. Master.

The Prime Minister replied that he thought they would like to see a speeding up.

BRIAND DENIES STATEMENTS AS TO THE BANK

Newspaper Accuses Him Of Ordering Berthelot To Resign Post

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 11.—A message from Paris states that, as a further sequel to the Banque Industrielle de Chine affair, the Echo de Paris has published a statement by General de Castelnau to the effect that M. Briand had told him that he considered M. Philippe Berthelot, Secretary General to the Foreign Office, an honest man, and that the Premier knew that M. Philippe Berthelot had a sum deposited in the Bank, which, of his own accord, he had put at the disposal of his brother, Senator Berthelot, who was President of the Council of Administration of the Bank.

The statement further alleges that M. Briand told General de Castelnau that he recognised that M. Philippe Berthelot's position had become a difficult, if not an impossible one, and that he must go.

M. Briand, however, denies that he made any such statements.

The action of the Chinese Bankers' Association in Peking, Shanghai and Tientsin in redeeming the notes of the Banque Industrielle de Chine was the subject of severe criticism in a telegram sent yesterday by two local organisations to the Peking Government. The authors of the telegram were the China Labor and Commercial Union and the Shanghai Commercial Union.

The message pointed out that while the association had ignored the failure of the Hsin Ni Bank, the Hsin Chen Bank and the Bank of Territorial Development and made no effort to cash their notes, it has gone to the aid of a Sino-French institution which is registered with the French authorities.

The Government of China, the message said, had no control over the note issuance of the bank, whose Chinese interests were owned by former premiers, ministers, governors and other high officials. In time of peace they reaped the fruits of the business but in time of disturbance, their interests remained safe under the protection of a foreign flag, said the message.

He turned in a report and Detective Sergeant Ashley on going to the premises found that a foreigner was locked inside. He gave his name as Edwards and said that he was a sailor off the steamer Celtic Prince. He was told to be patient until the owner of the godown could be located.

Finally, however, the prisoner smashed the panels of the door and got out. He was arrested and was recognised as J. Molyneux, wanted on a charge of desertion from ship. Molyneux was tried and convicted in the British Police Court yesterday. His explanation for his desertion and for getting locked up in the godown was that he had been drunk.

Russians In Harbin Find Hand Of Chinese Law Heavy

Argument Is Found For Extra-Territoriality In List Of Cases Reviewed

Reports that have been brought to Shanghai from the North emphasise that the way of the transgressor, particularly if he is a Russian, in Harbin, is a thorny path and those familiar with conditions in the Manchurian commercial center say that all arguments for the abolition of extra-territoriality in China are answered there.

Since China withdrew recognition of diplomatic agents from Russia and took over concessions that country had held, Russian nationals residing in China have come under the jurisdiction of Chinese laws and Chinese courts. How this has worked out is set forth in a publication issued recently by a number of organisations of Harbin which reviews in particular cases involving Russians that have been dealt with by Chinese courts in Harbin. Mr. M. Speelman, Manager of the International Savings Society recently received a copy of this publication.

According to reports of cases reviewed considerable difficulty has been encountered in finding interpreters to act in these cases, as few Chinese understand Russian and as few Russians can speak Chinese. This state of affairs together with peculiar ideas concerning the administering of justice of Chinese magistrates has worked out greatly to the disadvantage of Russian litigants in Harbin, the report states.

In one case told of a defendant found himself sentenced to death by the Chinese magistrate after he had been arrested and tried for breaking a window. The defendant was saved from this fate, however, when it was learned that the small boy who had been called in to act as an interpreter had conveyed to the court the idea that the defendant had killed a Mr. Window.

It has happened in other cases of Russians, the report continues, either because the magistrate failed properly to understand interpretations given or for other causes, that fines were imposed upon witnesses. In the list of other cases told of numerous queer judgments have been handed down when the punishment inflicted was out of proportion for the offense committed.

With the hope of bettering conditions it is said that an effort is being made to provide efficient interpreters for the Chinese courts in Harbin.

FORMER NORTH CHIEF HERE TO ORGANISE TRUST

Chu Yin-kwang Of Shantung Will Float New Commercial Enterprise

Chu Yin-kwang, former Civil Governor of Shantung, has arrived in Shanghai and is now staying at his private residence on Bubbling Well Road. While his trip to Shanghai is publicly for the inauguration of the Chen Chow Trust Company, which has its temporary premises at 36 Szechuen Road, intimate friends of the former governor say that he is attempting to secure the governorship in Chekiang.

Governor Shen Ching-chien of Chekiang has had considerable friction with Tuchun Lu Yung-hsiang, his military colleague, since the latter despatched his now famous telegram for self-government in their province. Shen had several times tendered his resignation; and a successor both acceptable to the Central administration as well as to Lu is being sought by Peking.

Chu, however, is not yet acceptable to the people of Chekiang on account of his former political record in this province. The gentry of Chekiang alleges that Chu was the original cause of the political chaos in Chekiang, because it was he who invited northern troops to enter their province. Chu is now said to be negotiating with the gentry.

It is significant that a number of the other promoters of the Chen Chow Trust Company is closely connected with the Chekiang Tuchun.

Shipbuilding Is Not Looking Up Lloyd's Reports

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 11.—Lloyd's shipbuilding returns for the three months ended June 30 states that 3,530,000 tons were under construction in the United Kingdom, which figure is 269,000 tons below the previous three months, but 1,179,000 tons—representing tonnage on which work was suspended owing to the decline of the demand for tonnage and the joiners' and coal strikes—must be deducted to enable a comparison to be made with the figures for normal times. The tonnage commenced during the quarter was only 69,000, representing less than two percent of the tonnage in hand at the beginning of the quarter. This is most significant as indicating the unfavorable outlook in the near future.

The total merchant tonnage now building abroad is 2,669,000. This is not subject to reduction on account of suspended or delayed work.

Railway Police To Be Men Of Shantung

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 11.—Some time ago the Government decided, at the request of the Tuchun of Shantung, that a special police force should be recruited and trained in Peking and Tsinanfu with the object of replacing the Japanese railway guard on the Kiaochow-Tsinanfu Line.

This decision has now been altered and the Government has authorised General Tien Wen-lieh to establish a training school for railway police at Tsinanfu, which will supply all the necessary railway guards, no men being sent from Peking.

Sanctions Also Syria Situation Seem Solvable

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, July 11.—M. Briand made an important statement in the Chamber of Deputies on the situation in Syria and Cilicia and on Franco-German relations.

The Premier pointed out that there were possibilities of a settlement of the Turkish problem in the near future, provided that France continued her conciliatory policy, without, however, laying herself open to a charge of weakness.

As regards Germany, M Briand defined the attitude of France as that of a country which possessed might but did not abuse it. He explained that it was still necessary to maintain the sanctions, in the interest of German democracy itself but he declared himself ready to forego the sanctions as soon as they were no longer necessary. The Premier's speech was loudly applauded.

Pete Herman Wins From Higgins By Knockout Route

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 12.—At Holland Park Hall last night, in a twenty-rounds boxing contest, Pete Herman, America, former bantamweight champion of the world, knocked out Jim Higgins, the British bantamweight champion, in the eleventh round.

The fight had been arranged as a bantamweight affair, but as Herman was three-quarters of a pound overweight, he paid a sum of money as forfeit to Higgins.

"BUGS" BAER SAYS

COLDEST FIGHTER IN RING HISTORY

So Cool That He Shook With Chills During Every Round

BY "BUGS" BAER

Dear Syrup:

How come this chatter regarding Gink Fowler? I saw Honolulu Joe mess up that hokey so badly they had to call in his relatives to identify his uncle. Honolulu was no picnic lunch champ. They gave him the razz in Honolulu because he couldn't pick up a cocoanut without crushing it into cocoa butter.

He was mean with strength—and mean without it. He used a bass viol for a ukelele and developed his sparring ability picking sunbeams off butterflies. He finally washed up while riding herd on a drove of Bengal tigers for the British Government in India.

All hail to the best man of them all.

Yours for nothing,

STEVE MATHEWSON,

Providence, R. I.

When the brains are away the skulls will play. Honolulu Joe was no ring enthusiast. He was a canvas fanatic. We admit he knew all the ropes, as most of them had slipped off his neck in the few minutes he loitered among the little playmates of Roughtown.

When Thomas Edison was a little lad in Roughtown he was asked four million questions by the most intelligent morons in the town. He answered them all imperfectly. He was stumped like a cigar in a cuspidor.

The questions were simple. Gink Fowler pleaded exemption because of a busted arch under his hat.

Here are some of the easier questions:

How long is a string?

How deep is a well?

How many beans are there in a bag?

Why doesn't the egg cackle instead of the hen?

What difference does it make what a woman carries in her handbag?

Where does a married man go when he doesn't go home?

What is the original color of blonde hair?

These were the first thousand questions. F' instance, a simple question like, "What difference does it make what a woman carries in her handbag?" is really a thousand questions in one. If she carries a near-booze recipe, where did she get it? How many raisins does she use, or does she buy her chewing gum or prefer to pick it up ad lib from under restaurant tables? It will be easy to figure why Edison was stumped like an axed tree.

In the century round Gink swung a straw manufacturer from the resin and scalloped Honolulu Joe right on the neck. His spine rattled like a string of spools falling down the dumbwaiter shaft. His buttons were hanging by a thread. His life was despaired of, but six medical tailors managed to pull him through his vest.

After that, Honolulu was known just as Lulu.

OLD TIMERS WILL HELP CELEBRATE WITH CLEVELAND

Cy Young, Zimmer, Bill Bradley Et Al Will Again Play Ball

Cy Young, Chief Zimmer, Charlie Hickman, Larry Lajoie, Jim McAleer and other famous old ball players better known to the fans of a generation ago than to those of today, are coming back into baseball. Not to the major leagues, or even to the minors, for these veterans have no idea that they can replace the stars of today, but plans are being made for all of them to appear in an exhibition game when the 125th anniversary of the founding of Cleveland is celebrated.

The team of old timers will meet a selection of Cleveland youngsters and efforts are being made to get some of the greatest ballplayers of baseball history in the Oldtimers' lineup.

Cy Young, who stayed in the big leagues until he was well past the forty year mark, will pitch for the Oldtimers, according to the plans, and Chief Zimmer, his old battery mate, will catch, Bill Bradley, whose wonderful fielding and batting feats still are related by the gray haired fans, will be at third base, Terry turner, the fielding flash of years ago, at shortstop, and Charlie Hickman at first. Larry Lajoie, still spoken of as the greatest all-time second baseman, will captain the team and play second.

In the outfield will be Elmer Flick, Jim McAleer and Harry Bay, all stars in their day. Neal Ball, who gained fame years ago through an unassisted triple play while with Cleveland; Jess Burkett, Bunk Congalton and George Cuppy will be the substitutes.

Lajoie thinks this team will hold its own against any other, despite the age of the players.

"Give us a few days to get into practice and develop our winds, and we won't make any alibis," he said.

Stolen Base Is No Longer Popular In Big Leagues; Heavy Hitting Is Rule Now

Failure Of Umpires To Enforce Balk Rule; Fewer Fast Men And Hard Clouting Means "SB" Goes Into Discard

The stolen base, once one of the biggest factors in the attack of world championship baseball teams, has been thrown into the discard by the major league managers of today. Records show that there, were nearly three times as many stolen bases in the American league and nearly twice as many in the National league nine years ago as there were last year and indications are that the decrease this year over nine years ago will be still greater. Where there were ten star base stealers there is now only one.

Many reasons for the decrease are advanced by managers and men who formerly were noted for their daring on the paths. While all agree that heavy hitting has helped in the tendency to make the stolen base extinct, some also blame the ineffectiveness of pitchers, failure of umpires to enforce the balk rule and the scarcity of fast men. Ty Cobb, the greatest base runner in history, says that the stolen base has been discarded only temporarily and will return soon.

NOW IT'S HITTING

Cobb declares that the game moves in cycles and that following the cycles of great pitching and great base running, we now have the cycle of great hitting.

"With the sluggers of today, base stealing is a back number," said the Detroit manager, whose stolen base mark formerly was close to the 100 figure for a season. "But, the hitting will pass. Then we will again return to the cycles of pitching and base-running. Five years from now my base running marks may be eclipsed by some youngster now in grammar school."

Tris Speaker, manager of the world champion Cleveland Indians, combines ineffectiveness of pitching with heavy hitting as the reason for the lack of stolen bases.

"The base runner of today is the man who can go from first to third or from second home on a single, not the man who can steal seventy-five bases in a season," said Speaker, "The ineffectiveness of the modern pitcher has brought about the heavy hitting and, indirectly, the decrease in stolen bases. We have no pitchers today like Mathewson, Joss, Walsh, Plank, Waddell, Brown and other stars of ten years ago. The average pitcher of today throws the ball up and hopes it won't hit him coming back."

UMPIRE'S LENIENCY

A well known National League manager, who did not wish his name used, but who is looked on as a student of baseball psychology, blamed the leniency of umpires in enforcing the balk rules as one reason for fewer stolen bases.

"Heavy hitting has been one factor," he said, "but another factor is that the pitchers today can hold a man two steps from first base. The runners can't get a start; pitchers make balk after balk and the umpires refuse to call them. The rule that when a pitcher makes any motion which he habitually makes in throwing to the plate and does not pitch to the batter, that it is a balk. The pitchers today repeatedly make motions to pitch to the batter and then snap the ball to first, so that the runner can't get any kind of a lead."

Eddie Collins, who once was one of the greatest of base runners, declares that the catchers are not throwing any better than in the years past and that the runners are not any slower.

"Why should I try to steal when I have men behind me who usually advance me by hitting?" asked Collins. "I'd be foolish to take the chance. Another thing, the rules are more strict now. We used to get a lot of free stolen bases when there were two out with the other team way ahead and no one cared whether the runner was on first or third. We don't get those any more. The only time I try to steal is with two out and one run needed to tie or win. Then I want to be

WASEDA MEN ARE POPULAR ON U.S. FIELDS

Japanese Ball Players Attract Attention On Present Tour

When Coach Tobita of the Waseda University baseball team runs over to the third base coaching lines as his Nipponese ball players come to bat, he doesn't let loose a flow of Japanese but yells instructions in the native language of the great American game. All of his players, who are now touring the United States, speak English in some degree and all of them use American baseball parlance on the diamond.

"Even the youngsters in Japan call 'Out' and 'Strike' in English," Coach Tobita said here recently, when his nine played the University of Chicago a three game series. "Of course all students in high schools and universities in Japan are taught English, but out in the fields where the small boys play ball, they use the English terms. Baseball is the Japanese national game, too."

Coach Tobita, who is 35 years old, has been playing ball for more than 15 years and has been a professional coach for two years. He was a star at Waseda, and captain of the team in 1909-10. His early diamond training was under Herbert H. Hunter, a former New York Giant, who had a large part in the development of baseball at Waseda. Baseball, however, has been played in Japan for 40 years, Coach Tobita said.

"The Japanese have two seasons of ball," Coach Tobita said, in explaining their enthusiasm for the game. "We have a spring and autumn schedule, each lasting about two months. In Tokio we have a league of four universities and play a regular schedule."

"Waseda has about 10,000 students but comparatively few of them take part in athletics," Coach Tobita said.

Members of the team expressed great admiration for the American universities, especially the large gymnasiums which Japanese universities do not yet have.

SHANGHAI TO PLAY QUIROS SATURDAY; JAPANESE MOST PROBABLE OPPONENT SUNDAY

Management Working On Schedule That Will Keep All Players Busy; New Batting Cage Ready For Stiff Practice Session This Afternoon

There's a brand new batting cage out at the baseball park (made in Shanghai, chiefly by Mal Maloney), waiting for a dozen or two or more of Shanghai's baseball players to step out and try it out. It stops all of the good ones that the would-be batter misses, and it picks up the wide ones and the low ones, slides them up a scientifically calculated incline, and loops them down in front of the batter and pitcher as a reminder that the ball was wide or low, or missed by a mile.

Shanghai players must get out to the park this evening at five o'clock for a work out. All players must take their turn in front of the cage. Pitchers are not excepted. The cage will develop twirling as well as slugging, for the man in the box can put everything he possesses on the ball, with never a fear of it going astray. If he can't fool the batter, the outfielders will gather them in; if he can the ball will be dropped down in front of the batter to remind him that he has missed.

Monday and Tuesday were gala days for baseballers. Only a few of the faithful turned out. But this evening the whole 28 or 30 candidates are expected to go through their training. The management has a stiff program of baseball on tap that will call for the best effort of every man who can fit into a uniform.

The program for the immediate future is being kept a half-secret until it is finally arranged for. It can be announced right now however, that Shanghai will play the little gunboat Quiros on Saturday at 3:30 o'clock, and that a real big league game will be staged on Sunday. The latter might be with the team off the cruiser Wilmington which is limping down the Yangtsze from Hankow this morning, with a broken anchor or something, or it may be with the leaders of an entirely new league.

MAY PLAY JAPANESE SUNDAY

Manager Ross has discovered a rival, a contender for baseball honors for the City. He is working hard to get these rivals into a match at the Race Course against the Shanghai Baseball Club. The team in mind is the pick of the numerous Japanese nines which play nearly every day at Hongkew. The Nipponese line will include such players as Mori, the stylish catcher, who backstopped for the Osaka Diamond team which represented Japan in the Olympic and Far Eastern Games in the first part of June. And Mori is but one. The Japanese team, if secured, will perhaps be the strongest local aggregation of ball players that Shanghai has ever faced.

There is another big schedule of baseball on tap too. It is not possible at this writing to tell the world about it, but it is big enough and severe enough to warrant that every ball player, in Shanghai hie himself out to the batting cage for a stiff workout. It is almost safe to promise that every man who shows for drill and play will get his chance to startle the grandstands regularly from now on.

The flagship Huron sailed for Chefoo yesterday morning taking with it the best little baseball team that has visited this port this season. This of course excludes the Olympic competitors. The cruiser Albany also pulled down the Whangpoo and up the Kiangsze for Hangkow yesterday taking with it another good bunch of ball players. The only navy team left in port is that off the Quiros. It is expected however, that the next day or so will see an announcement of baseball probabilities that will have every player in town trying for a place on one of the S.B.C. nines.

Stolen Base Is No Longer Popular In Big Leagues

on second so I can score on a single."

NOT SO SMART

Harry Hooper, another great base runner, takes the same view as Collins, while Kid Gleason, manager of the Chicago White Sox says that the base runners of today aren't as smart as those of past years. He said:

"Why have them steal, when the chances are they'll get thrown out or picked off the sack after stealing?" He said. "The batters are hitting and that's the best way to get the runners home."

The records reveal some unusual facts about base stealing in the major leagues. The number of total stolen bases has decreased rapidly, more so in the American league than in the National which now has replaced the junior circuit as the leading base stealing organisation.

In 1912 there were 1,910 stolen bases in the American league, 1,450 in 1915, 906 in 1919 and only 750 last year. Thus far this season there have been 197 thefts, at the ratio of only 591 for the season or little more than one fourth the number in 1912. Where Clyde Milan led the league in 1912 with 88 thefts and Cobb in 1915 with 96, the leader last year—Sam Rice—stole only 63, and George Sisler with 42 was the only other man to pass the 25 mark. Eight years ago there were nearly 30 men with more than 25 stolen bases each.

The National league runners, originally stealing fewer bases than their American league rivals, now are ahead of the junior circuit. In 1912 there were 1,576 stolen bases in the National, 1,214 in 1915, 1,165 in 1919 and 969 last year. The ratio thus far this year would bring 654 for the season if continued to the end—little more than one third as many as in 1912.

AUSSIES SCORE HEAVILY BUT SCOTLAND DRAWS

Australians Make 540 Runs And Scotland, 77; Plays Out Time

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 11.—The match at Glasgow between the Australians and the West of Scotland was resumed today before an attendance of some 5,000 spectators, in dull weather and on a fast and good wicket.

The Australians, whose score stood at 483 for seven wickets at close of play on Saturday, brought their total up to 540, all out; Ryder's contribution being 129, including 14 fours in a stylish display in which he gave not a single chance.

The West of Scotland compiled 227 in their first innings, Stevenson making 50, Carr 49, and John Gunn 43, while Mailey took four wickets for 108, and Ryder two for 10. Following on, they played out time, scoring 77 for three wickets. The match thus resulted in a draw.

AMERICAN GOBS ARE ENTERTAINED BY CHEFOO "Y"

Accommodations Made For Sailors At Northern Port For Summer

(China Press Correspondence)

Chefoo, July 6.—The observance of Independence Day at Chefoo this year was marked by quietude and saneness. Aquatic sports featured the program in the failure of the usual baseball game to materialise.

In the evening an entertainment was given at the Y.M.C.A. quarters for the men off the destroyers. Mr. Lupton of the "Y" gave a reception from noon until 1 p.m. which a representative gathering attended.

Chefoo this year is preparing for the summer visit of the American fleet and its hundreds of sailors. A large area of ground has been secured, on which a dining hall has been fitted up. The equipment provides small tables with places for four, and a seating capacity for 200 men. Exchange booths have been provided and, to avoid friction with ricksha coolies rates have been posted throughout the town.

Honan Tuchun To Hold Profiteers Down On H.C. Of L.

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, July 9.—General Chao Ti, Military Governor of Honan, notified the government that he and other officials throughout the province have succeeded in keeping the prices of millet and wheat within reach of the people despite the efforts of certain profiteers to increase the cost unreasonably.

For several weeks prior to July 1, the officials maintained official grain stores and sold the grains at a little above the original cost price. Those who had laid in large stocks were forced likewise to reduce their prices and so the officials were able to close up the special shops. The dealers have promised not to increase the prices again, it is said.

General Chao suggests that it would be a nice thing for the Government to reward those who used their own money and efforts in protecting the people.

KWANGSI FORCE GAINING GROUND

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 11.—General Lu Yung-ting reports that the Kwangsi forces are gaining ground in the Chinlien district and are advancing on Yinghsin.

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, July 9.—Kwangsi troops which are fighting the Central Government's battles against Kwangtung are in a much better position now than they have been for several days past, according to despatches from General Lu Yung-ting. Shaoshing and Kaolien have been captured from the Kwangtung troops and the lines have been so consolidated that there is little danger of a counteraction, the General believes.

While the Kwangtung troops still hold Wuchow which they captured several days ago, this place is not now considered of much importance. General Lu seems to have gotten himself out of a difficult place by a change in his campaign.

When he first retreated from Wuchow his troops retired toward the Hunan border and the Tuchun of that province notified him that if he crossed into Hunan there would be another war.

General Lu therefore changed his plans and began fighting for a port through which he could obtain supplies from the North. He is after Chinglien and has wired the Government that the prospects are good for getting it, though General Chen Chuin-ming has gone there to take charge of the defense.

The campaign is proving costly, General Lu says and he has asked for a remittance of $200,000 at once.

Objects To Wire Not Yet Received By The Government

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, July 9.—Government officials were puzzled today over a telegram received from Mr. Yang Hsun-kia in Anking. The despatch said that the Agricultural Society of the province and some of the newspapers had joined in sending a telegram to the Government protesting against the treatment of students at the hands of officials.

The Government was asked to pay no attention to the telegram as it had many statements that were not true.

So far the Government has paid no attention to the telegram of protest because it hasn't received it. Officials think it probable that Mr. Yang was misinformed.

GERMAN TITLES TROUBLE CHINESE

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, July 10.—The old question of Japan's rights to dispose of German properties in Tsingtau has again come to the front and despite the protests of China, large amounts of the property have already been sold.

At the Japanese legation it was said today that the German owners will receive a part of the proceeds in proportion to their holdings. The limit for any one owner however is to be fixed at 1,000 yen. For the remainder they are directed to appeal to their own government. It has been suggested that the German Government might buy the property back for the Germans.

Sale of German property both in Tsingtau and in Japan is directed by a special bureau named by the Ministry of Finance to look after enemy property. China has protested that Tsingtau and all of Shantung are Chinese and that Japan has no right under the ruling of the League of Nations to dispose of property in China. The protest has not been heeded.

Japan's claim is that the Peace Conference gave her the right to administer all affairs and that the German property comes under the general rights conferred. The Germans will find it no easy task to resume business at Tsingtau but it is said that German business men who had their securities well placed during the war, are planning to open business on a large scale in several Chinese cities, regardless of the losses that resulted from the fall of Tsingtau and China's decision to get into the war.

Bridge Commission Members Are Dined

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, July 9.—Mr. F. C. Hitchcock, Vice-President of the Siems-Carey Railway and Canal Company, last evening gave a dinner of 28 covers in the Grand Hotel de Pekin in honor of Dr. J. A. L. Waddell, Mr. Horace Wilmer and the other members of the Yellow River Bridge Commission. The company was quite international, American, British, Belgian, Chinese, French, Dutch and Japanese engineers and financiers being present.

At the conclusion of the dinner Mr. Hitchcock introduced the two speakers of the evening, Dr. Waddell and Mr. Wilmer, the British representative on the Bridge Commission, and these gentlemen made brief speeches emphasising the value of the Commission, the importance of the Yellow River Bridge to China and their own gladness to have had an opportunity to visit this country.

Russian Bishop Denies Christian Burial To Infant

(Dalta News Agency)

Peking, July 7.—A child of Mr. and Mrs. Tujilin died at Peitaiho on the 4th instant. The body was brought to Peking for burial in the Russian Cemetery. Bishop Innocent of the Russian Orthodox Mission refused to inter the baby in the Russian cemetery. The request of the bereaved parents to bury the baby themselves was also rejected on the ground that Mr. Tujilin, formerly Russian Consul at Saghalien (Helampo), has now become a member of the Mission of Far Eastern Republic in Peking, and that children "whose parents are working for Bolsheviks" are excommunicated from the church and have no claim to the last Christian rites nor to be laid to rest in a Christian cemetery. Mr. Tujilin was obliged to apply to the local British Mission, which consented to bury the child in the British churchyard. In the course of the service the priest said, "Children whosoever their parents may happen to be are angels to God."

The Dalta correspondent visited Mr. Tujilin, who made the following statement with regard to Bishop Innocent of the Russian Orthodox Mission and his refusal to bury the child in the Russian cemetery:

BISHOP'S REASONS

"A few days ago my youngest son, Serguis (13 months old) died at Pei Tai Ho. As there was no foreign cemetery there the child was brought to Peking to be buried at the Russian cemetery in accordance with the rules of the Orthodox Church, the child being an orthodox child. I had never thought that a cemetery could be a place for politics and that Bishop Innocent would take revenge upon those who differ with him politically by refusing to bury an innocent child. The mother and I brought the coffin to the Orthodox Mission. Leaving the coffin at the gate, we applied to the secretary who kindly directed us to Archimandute Simon.

"Father Simon went to Bishop Innocent to report the matter and came back with the Bishop's reply that the child could not be buried at the cemetery of the Church on account of the fact that I am working in the Mission of the Far Eastern Republic, and thus helping the Bolsheviks, who are excommunicated; and that it was useless for us to apply to the Orthodox Mission, which has nothing whatever to do with Bolsheviks. The last part of the sentence was repeated many times. I insisted on allotment to me of the necessary ground so that I could bury the child myself without the assistance of the Church. This was also not allowed. Thanks to the kindness of the chaplain of the British Church, the child was finally buried at the British cemetery."

Mr. Tujilin suggested that an application be made to the Chinese Government, asking it to allot to Russians the necessary ground for a cemetery independent of the Orthodox Mission.

Strive To Make Kwangtung Model Through Education

(Staff Correspondence)

Canton, July 6.—The Cantonese attempt to make their province, Kwangtung, a model one in the Republic of China through education, while ambitious and not an easy matter, is not a thing impossible or unreasonable, if given time and chance. The Cantonese are confident that their leaders will, from now on, keep their province from further involvement in Peking politics.

Canton has to go through an internecine war almost every two years since the birth of the nominal republic, and practically every one was caused by the intrigue, corruption, and malice of the Peking gang of militarists and traitors. In 1913, the removal of Hu Han-min as Governor-General of Kwangtung by Yuan Shih-kai caused the Kwangtung independence movement which resulted in the defeat of the Kuomintang for a time in Canton and the appointment of the notorious Lung Chi-kuang as the head of the government in this province.

The attempt of Yuan Shih-kai in 1915 to make himself emperor compelled the Cantonese and the people of the South-west to organise the then Military Council in Shiuhing, Kwangtung, in opposition to the monarchical movement and Lung Chi-kuang, whose assumption of the title of prince conferred upon him by the emperor-to-be and the making of Kwangtung his principality, resulted in inciting all the republicans here to go against him.

The making of Kwangtung the main center of the present constitutional struggle and the past wars against the return of Lung Chi-kuang or the remain of Lu Yung-ting have all been due to the refusal of the Peking militarists to acknowledge the power of the people and the desire of the Cantonese to make China safe for democracy.

After ten years of long and hard suffering for which the Peking Government was responsible, the thinking Cantonese have decided to let Peking alone and reconstruct their province through education.

The Fifth Educational Conference of Kwangtung, held in Canton from June 21 to 30, has passed an ambitious but not at all impossible program. Whether or not the Government will approve the entire program, is still not known, but that it is in sympathy with the whole principle, no one would deny.

It is the recommendation of the four hundred leading and best-known educationists of the province to separate school administration from local provincial political administrations so as to free education from political parties by the formation of educational commissions independent of other departments of government and thus to insure the various incomes intended for education from being diverted to other purposes.

The Conference has also recommended the gradual introduction of universal education throughout the province by the provision of an increase of school appropriations and addition of normal schools for the instruction of teachers each year so as to enable sufficient teachers and income for the free education of all children in Kwangtung by the end of say 1927 or soon afterward. It is hoped that 30 percent of the public works tax will be devoted to education. In accordance with the new district election law in Kwangtung, every voter shall serve at least three days on public works or pay a tax in lieu thereof. There is reason to believe that there will be more voters as the days go by and fewer will actually work and more tax be collected.

As a start, the City of Canton, which now has its own municipal form of government with a mayor at the head, has created a public education commission to execute the policy of free and compulsory education in Canton proper. The commission has decided first to carry out the policy in one part of the city where common education is most needed and children are least fortunate. The work of the commission at present consists of the gathering of data relative to the literacy of the population in the district, the carrying on among the parents especially and the citizens at large of propaganda work which will remove opposition to compulsory education, and eventually enlist support from the mass in favor of the movement.

Ignorance and poverty on the part of parents will be the natural forces against the prohibition of child labor and the introduction of compulsory education; and it is considered that education among the mass regarding the purpose of schooling should come before direct operation of the policy on the children. Canton will not enforce the policy of compulsory education even in a limited section until 1923 so as to start well and be within its means.

Aside from a school program for the young ones, the teachers and educationists throughout the Province of Kwangtung are advised to interest the governments and communities in the holding of child exhibits through which mothers may be taught better methods of taking care of their children and the promotion of the health of themselves as well as their little ones, as after all, the success of a child depends more on home than school education. Child study commissions, composed of men and women who would study the child from physical and psychological points of view so as to formulate a system of education suitable to a Chinese or Cantonese and not in accordance with what may be used in cities and countries where a teacher may have been educated when living abroad, will be created.

The demands of the laborers for better conditions and shorter hours and the unwillingness of the young women nowadays to remain at home all the time, these and other new conditions coming after political and economic changes, all require social education to prepare and direct a course for the people. The City of Canton has a division of government on social education, and playgrounds, libraries, street lecturers, posters, and other enterprises, all coming within its promotion and supervision. The Fifth Kwangtung Educational Conference has recommended that a liberal appropriation be made by the provincial, city, and district governments for this form of education.

It will take some time before the recommendations are accepted by the officials and people of Kwangtung, but the more thinking citizens all agree that popular education will be the best if not the only way to make Kwangtung a model province. Many believe that the Cantonese, because of their well-known talents and natural resources as well as their history and past achievements, are not aiming too high when trying to make themselves the leaders in the Republic by bringing forth a republican government which will be a model for the rest of China.

STEVENS WOULD BLOCK ISSUE OF BONDS BY C. E. RY.

Head Of Technical Board To Stop Tls. 25,000,000 Debenture Plan

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, July 9.—Colonel John F. Stevens, Chief of the Inter-Allied Technical Board, is much exercised over the proposed issue of debentures to the value of Taels 25,000,000 by the Chinese Eastern Railway and is taking such measures as lie in his power to block this issue, according to information given your correspondent today. Colonel Stevens is stated to be of the opinion that no action can be taken involving the economic status of the line unless the approval of the Technical Board has first been obtained, and his attempts to block the debenture issue are based on this opinion.

The Railway Company, on the other hand, takes the stand that there is no clause in the agreement providing for the Inter-Allied Technical Board that gives the Board the authority to interfere with measures such as the debenture issue; and some officials connected with the Chinese Ministry of Communications have gone so far as to state that the Technical Board cannot continue in existence should the Peking Government decide to dispense with its services. Thus the situation regarding the new debentures is more involved than ever, although it is believed in Russian, Chinese and Japanese railway and financial circles that the debentures will be issued and sold in short order despite the protests of the Technical Board.

It becomes increasingly evident that the Russians connected with the Chinese Eastern yielded to the Chinese on the debenture question only after a hard fight and because they realised that failing the issue of Taels 25,000,000 of debentures by the Railway, the Chinese Ministers of Communications and War, who hold their present posts on the basis of specific pledges to raise funds for military and administrative expenses, would make other arrangements to dispose of China's financial interest in the Railway to Japanese interests. China had to have the money, and the Communications and War Ministers saw in the Chinese Eastern their only way of getting it now.

In connection with the probable liquidation of China's interest in the Chinese Eastern Line it is believed in political and financial circles here that Mr. Ono will at last come into his own; the Peking Government will, in other words, pay to Mr. Ono the arrears of interest on the Nishihara Loans from the proceeds of the sale of China's interest in the Railway. The balance left over after this payment will be used, it is stated, for arrears of administrative expenses and for Chang Tso-lin's armies.

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, July 9.—In further connection with the proposed issue of Taels 25,000,000 of 5 percent debentures by the Chinese Eastern Railway Company, the Chung Mei News Agency learns that the shareholders' resolution authorising this issue was passed without the knowledge or consent of the Inter-Allied Technical Board, whose Chairman, Colonel John F. Stevens, has only recently returned to Harbin from America and Japan.

It is stated here that the Powers represented on the Inter-Allied Technical Board, particularly Great Britain and the United States, feel that the Board is entitled to be consulted on all economic questions concerning the Chinese Eastern Railway. And, if this proves to be the case, the exact status of the proposed debenture issue will not be settled until Colonel Stevens and his Board have been consulted.

The plan to issue debentures at all originated with the desire of the Chinese Government, represented by the Ministers of Communications, War and Finance, to obtain funds to meet arrears and current expenses.

The Russians connected with the management of the Line did not, the Chung Mei News Agency is reliably informed, favor the measure and only yielded because it offered the only means of raising funds with which to pay out China's financial interest in the Line, amounting to some Taels 13,000,000. The debenture question undoubtedly delayed the final solution by the shareholders of the problems confronting the Railway, and the harmonious settlement of these problems at the meeting of July 5 is stated to be due to the desire of both the Russians and the Chinese concerned in the Railway to work in the closest co-operation, even if this co-operation involved the yielding of points of genuine importance to one side or the other.

Both Chinese and Russians who are in close touch with the railway situation in Northern Manchuria agree that the issue of debentures at 5 percent will not attract any private investor. They also agree that the Consortium is not prepared to invest funds for the development of the Railway and that the only possible buyer of the proposed debenture issue is the South Manchurian Railway, thus confirming the Chung Mei News Agency's forecast of July 8.

Peking, July 8.—We find it necessary to deny Reuter's report about a spoiled harvest in the Volga region and 25,000,000 starving people. We have received several telegrams from Russia in the course of the last few days stating that the harvest is exceedingly good and the prospect of the autumn harvest is also encouraging.

A Clown, Two Women And A Dog

The Mountebank. By William J. Locke. John Lane Company.

Locke's latest story is of the familiar type told by a spectator who comes into the plot in a kind of external fashion and for the most part simply explains things to the reader. There is always some kind of sharp contrast in Locke's fiction between character and circumstance. And he does not fail his public in the new book.

The hero is a waif brought up in the circus, developing an extraordinary gift for clowning of the more artistic sort. His character is fundamentally English, with an imposed French surface.

The first part of his life is moulded by his French environment. But when the war comes he enters the English army and rises to the rank of General, incidentally falling in love with a very English titled lady, who does her share of the loving. But neither mentions his or her emotional state to the other. Only the discreet reader—and all the titled lady's family—are in the secret.

So the demobilised General stoically goes back to France to the woman who has shown him a certain sympathy and to his "profession." And there you have a thoroughly Lockean plot, yet to be solved in the author's own way and time.

One character remains to be mentioned, the General's intimate friend, brother of an archdeacon, who finally has a prime part in the solution. This Bakkus is of the disreputable, unclassified, philosophy loving sort that Locke delights in—something on the order of his Septimus and Simon and the rest of them.

The story is in part based on the hero's own notes of his life. And the reader is reassured as early as page 6 by the casually astounding remark of the autobiographer, who has risen from private to Brigadier-General: "I have cut out the war!"

As usual in the book of a man who knows how to write, there are episodes that touch the reader as much as the main theme. For example, there was the period when Andrew did his act with a dog. After some years the faithful comrade and partner fell in the path of an automobile. This is the passage that follows Andrew's first night without his dog:

"Experience enabled him to give a satisfactory performance; and his manager prepared his path by announcing the unhappy end of Prepimpin and cruving the indulgence of the audience. But Andrew passed a heart-broken hour at the music hall. In his dressing room were neatly stored the dog's wardrobe and properties—the gay ribbons, the harness, the little yellow silk hat which he wore with such a swaggering air, the little basket carried over his front paw, into which he would sweep various objects when his master's back was turned; the drinking dish labelled 'Dog' * * * He suffered almost a human bereavement. And then the audience for this night was kind. But as conscientious artist he was sensitively aware of makeshift. A great element of his success lay in the fact that he had trained the dog to appear the more clever of the two, to score off his pretended clumsiness and to complete his tricks. For years he had left uncultivated the art of being funny by himself."

True, he found a woman to take the dog's place. Indeed, she took more than that—which helped make the plot of the story.

CHILE ALARMED AT CONCESSIONS KRUPPS OBTAIN

London, April 27.—Great interest has been excited in Chile, writes a correspondent to The London Morning Post, by the disclosure of the fact that extensive concessions have been granted by the government to a German industrial firm, which is believed to be Krupp's, of Essen.

Not only do the Chileans resent the cession of a large stretch of their best forest land to foreigners, but they are greatly concerned over the possibility that the Entente powers may look askance at the transaction, regarding it as assistance lent to the Germans in the latter's effort to prepare for another war.

The Santiago newspapers explain that about 300,000 acres of forest land in Llanquihue have been ceded to the German firm, which is to establish iron and steel foundries there. The concession is bounded on the west by the Calbuco volcano, at the foot of which the future industrial center will lie; on the south by Chapo and the Reloncavi marsh, with an outlet to the sea; on the east by the Rivers Cochamo and Esperanza, up to their junction with the lake of Todos los Santos; and on the north by the lake of Todos los Santos and the famous River Petrohue, whose enormous volume affords brilliant prospects for great hydraulic installations. The whole extent of the land is covered with virgin forests, the gigantic trees in which, according to El Mercurio, constitute a source of incalculable wealth.

AFTER IRON ALSO

The report is current in Santiago that the representatives of the Krupp firm who obtained the concession in Llanquihue also signed an "ad referendum" contract with Senor Enrique Gonzalez for the purchase of the iron ore mines known as Pleito and Zapallo, situated in the provinces of Coquimbo and Atacama, respectively, for the sum of £1,000,000 sterling, leaving a deposit of £50,000 in the Banco Aleman Transatlantico. El Sol (Santiago), writing on the subject of the concession, says:

"It appears that Germany is forbidden by the Treaty of Versailles to manufacture cannon or arms of any kind within her own territory. Consequently she comes to these facile countries, with their wood and their iron, and installs this death-dealing industry, which has already caused so much damage in the world. It seems that Krupps is one of the firms that will give financial support to these new foundries. Finally, it is considered in well-informed circles that the journey to Chile of General Litzman was in connection with this matter. It has even been stated that distinguished officers of the German army have been visiting Chile to study the business."

The Chilean Foreign Minister is reported to have stated that the concession granted to the Germans in Llanquihue merely furthers the scheme for developing the national siderurgical industry.

CRANE GOES ON ACROSS SIBERIA

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, July 9.—Mr. Charles R. Crane, the former American Minister to China, and his party have definitely proceeded westward from Chita on their way to Moscow, according to a letter received here from a member of the Crane Party.

The doubt as to Mr. Crane's movements arose from the fact that the Soviet Government twice refused him permission to enter Soviet Russia. These refusals were due to Moscow's resentment at the treatment accorded to Mr. Martens in the United States, combined with the belief that Mr. Crane was to visit Russia on an official mission rather than as an ordinary traveller.

After the second refusal from Moscow reached Chita Mr. Crane gave away all his food supplies and started back for Harbin. His return was cut short, however, by the receipt on route of a message from Chita stating that Moscow had finally consented to his entering Russia. So the Crane party made the return journey to Chita, re-outfitted there and are now on their way to the West, somewhere between Irkutsk and Omsk.

Navy Men Facing Loss Of Back Pay

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, July 9.—Members of the American Association of North China and of the American Chamber of Commerce of Peking, meeting today to discuss measures in connection with the declaration by the Comptroller of the U. S. Navy that post allowance payments made in 1919 and 1920 to the officers and men of the American Legation Guard were illegal and must be refunded, decided not to take up this question actively or publicly until the U. S. Navy Department actually begins to withhold current pay from the officers and men affected by the Comptroller's ruling.

Private steps to bring relief to those affected by the ruling will, however, be taken by numerous individual Americans through such influential connections as they may have in Washington and elsewhere in the United States.

Pershing In Favor Of Limit In Armament

Lincoln, Neb., June 8.—General Pershing, Chief of Staff of the United States Army, declared here last night before the State League of Women Voters that he preferred limited armament to disarmament and quoted President Harding as saying that the President had taken steps through diplomatic channels to start a movement toward lifting the burden of excessive armament. General Pershing said he took a position between the two extremes of the militarist and the pacifist.

In view of the large expenditures of the war and the heavy war debts in most countries now, he said it would be advisable that some workable plan should be devised to limit expenditures.

"It would be folly," he said, "for America to lay down her arms. A certain amount of armament is necessary. It should not be hard to convince other nations that some steps in limiting armament is advisable."

"If we agree to discuss the matter, putting all cards on the table, we should arrive at some conclusion leading to a decrease in the burden of armament," he continued. "I believe that public opinion is back of such a policy and I think Congress is also. I am authorised by the President to say that if we could secure a concord of nations he would be happy to lift the burden of excessive armament. He told me that he had taken steps through diplomatic channels to get the thing started with that end in view."

Plan Long Study Of Austrian Funds

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Vienna, July 10.—Of the two special delegates whom the Finance Commission of the League of Nations decided to send here to study the financial situation in Austria and to pave the way for the opening of credits, one, M. Hausen, arrived yesterday, while the other, Colonel Shuster, is expected shortly.

It is anticipated that the delegates' stay in the Austrian Capital will be a long one.

U.S. Gold Hoard Passes 3 Billions

In the ten days ended May 20, imports of gold aggregated $16,442,661, bringing the total since January 1 to $288,624,063, according to the Federal Reserve Board. Gold holdings now are the greatest in the history of the country. On June 1 the stock of gold was $3,175,037,198, thus exceeding a record of $3,121,887,443 established on May 1, 1917. Exports of gold from the United States in the ten days ended May 20 were $209,136, bringing the total since January 1 to $5,271,686.

A discrepancy between the gold imports statistics issued by the Federal Reserve Board and those issued by the Treasury Department is explained in part at the Assay Office in New York as a probable deduction as a result of the passing of the metal through the Assay Office. It was explained yesterday by an official of that office that the charges for assaying are deducted from the total payment received by a bank which has deposited gold and that the fineness of the old and other considerations enter into the final accounting.

Imports of silver for ten days ended May 20 were $2,929,907 making a total since Jan. 1 of $22,676,262. Exports of silver from the United States during the ten days ended May 20 were $745,599 bringing the total since Jan. 1 to $18,520,550.

The following table gives the imports of gold from the principal countries:

	10 Days ended May 20	Jan. 1 to May 20, 1921.
France	$4,691,867	$63,591,228
Netherlands	2,217,676	15,032,741

Paris Waits 7 Years For Oldtime 'Oeuf'

London, April 2.—The chocolate Easter egg, which has been much in evidence in Paris recently, has a rival in popularity for which Parisians have been waiting seven years, remarks the Paris correspondent of The London Daily News. It is an ordinary "oeuf," but its virtue lies in the fact that it can now be bought for 6 sous. There are twopenny ones, but probably like the Parisians, they also have been waiting for seven years and they are not safe. The greatest novelty is, however, that certain shopkeepers are selling them thirteen to the dozen—dear old forgotten habit!

The fashion this year will be to present the thirteenth egg, dyed red, to mark a solemn occasion.

For life is steadily improving in Paris. Summarised, the latest news is:

You can buy tobacco and matches.

Bread is nearly white.

Halfpenny postcards are coming back.

You can often get on a bus.

There are a lot of nice clean new taxis.

The last item is a joy, a pretty little thing, built discreetly for two, in dark green with a "chic" yellow stripe. The old "red rattlers" in which Gallieni's Taxicab Army won the first battle of the Marne, were very interesting as souvenirs, but they gave the unfortunate fare a headache, and they had a regrettable tendency to come unstruck. In the new ones there is a delightful notice to the effect that:

"Messieurs the voyagers are instantly asked to preserve the cleanliness so essential to the luxury of this vehicle."

And what could be more charming than that.

The latest amusement is to watch the "red bands on the boulevards." For, anxious to protect the foot passengers, the authorities are having large red bands painted across from one side of the road to the other.

"What's that they're painting the correspondent asked a Frenchman, who was idly watching the vigorous splashing of red paint.

"That? Oh, that's to mark the official place for being run over," he answered, cynically.

Chief Inspector.
E. Kilner,

"PRICELESS"

is a popular way of describing anything which has proved to be of exceptional value, and may therefore be employed to describe that old and favourite preparation—Beecham's Pills. The ever-increasing army of men and women who have experience of this excellent medicine generally use some such phrase as "priceless" or "Worth a guinea a box" when speaking of Beecham's Pills. This is certainly high praise. But it is well-merited. Beecham's Pills have proved, times out of number, to be a "priceless" preparation in the treatment of digestive ailments. They bring relief; they safeguard the health; they effect remarkable cures. All who suffer in any way from biliousness, sick headache, constipation, impaired appetite, and the resulting loss of energy and want of tone should take

Key Industries To Be Given Protection

London, June 7.—The House of Commons this evening by a vote of 312 to 92 passed the second reading of the bill for the protection of key industries and for the prevention of "dumping."

This legislation, known as the Safeguarding of Industries bill, provides for a five-year customs duty of 33 1-3 percent ad valorem on the importation into the United Kingdom of optical glass, optical instruments, scientific glassware, porcelain and various instruments, magnetos, tungsten and its products, and synthetic organic chemicals, except dyestuffs, coloring matter and fine chemicals.

Under the bill a similar duty, in addition to the existing customs duty, would be required on any article which the Board of Trade might specify, which it was considered was being sold or offered for sale in the United Kingdom at a price below the cost of production there.

Tebong Estate Meeting

The three resolutions passed by the meeting of the shareholders of the Tebong Rubber and Tapioca Estate, Ltd., on June 27 were confirmed yesterday at an extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders in the office of Mssrs. J. A. Wattie and Co.

In The U.S. Court For China

H. V. Bernard and B. C. Yuien, doing business as Euro-China Trading Company, Plaintiffs, vs. MacPherson, Fenstamaker, Whitehouse Company, a corporation, Defendant.

Cause No. 1196, Civil No. 412, order filed at Shanghai July 11, 1921.

N. R. Lurton,
Deputy Clerk.

SYLLABUS

1. Contracts: Offer and acceptance by cable examined and found sufficient to effect a contract.

2. Id. Where the answering cable contains an unqualified acceptance the terms of the contract are not altered by further information volunteered in said answer.

3. Pleading: Corporate Capacity of defendant is admitted under a general denial.

Messrs. Stirling Fessenden and F. J. Schuhl, for plaintiffs, R. T. Bryan, Jr., for defendant.

Lobingier, J.:

On April 2, 1920, defendant, whose principal office appears to be in Seattle, cabled plaintiff as follows:

"April second referring to your letter No. 303 cable lengths we quote c.i.f. & c. 47 dollars per ton 2,000 lbs. 300 tons shipment per steamer during April May June offer firm subject to reply received April 7th telegraph letter of credit."

Plaintiffs answered on April 6:

"Replying April 2 Large accept 300 tons (2,000 lbs.) cable lengths 47.00 per ton of 2,000 pounds irrevocable letter of credit will be established by cable quote newspaper."

These two cables appear sufficient to effect a contract and there was no necessity either for an assignment to plaintiffs or for a confirmation by defendant. It is true that the negotiations were begun by defendant with another party by whom one of the plaintiffs was then employed; but the latter wrote the letter No. 303," mentioned in defendant's first cable, and the negotiations were consummated with plaintiffs. It is the consummation which counts.

It is claimed that the contract was never performed because plaintiffs failed to open an irrevocable letter of credit. It will be seen that defendant's offer did not require that. It called merely for a "letter of credit" without specifying the kind. And plaintiffs accepted that offer. True, in its cable of acceptance it volunteered the further information that an "irrevocable letter of credit will be established." But that statement was not necessary for the acceptance and was in fact made after acceptance had been stated. And while plaintiffs on April 30 cabled "Letter of credit not satisfactory; must arrange irrevocable," that was long after the contract had been effected and too late to introduce new terms. Defendant itself did not insist upon doing so for it neither cabled nor wrote further but instead shipped the goods which it claimed were called for by the contract. Defendant's practical construction thereof shows that it did not consider an irrevocable letter of credit one of its essentials.

It is asserted that "the action is prematurely brought" because plaintiffs have not paid certain drafts drawn upon them for the purchase price and accepted. But plaintiffs' prayer is not for reimbursement for payments nor "for the return of the purchase price" but for damages for the non-delivery of the goods called for by the contract. The rule invoked is inapplicable.

The objection that plaintiffs have failed to prove that defendant "is an American corporation engaged in business at Shanghai" deserves little comment. Corporate capacity is admitted unless denied specifically; it cannot, as a rule, be raised under a general denial such as defendant's.

Moreover the verification of its answer shows that it is a corporation, that Mr. Fenstamaker who made the verification is its attorney in fact and that he was in Shanghai at the time. It appears from the testimony that he was doing business for defendant and presumably he had an office. But whether so or not is immaterial since defendant appeared and answered to the merits. The motion for nonsuit is overruled.

By the Court,
Charles S. Lobingier,
Judge.

Major Mike And The Chita Agent

BY DR. A. E. ZUCKER

(Note: Dr. Zucker of Union Medical College, Peking, is spending his vacation in Siberia as a representative of The China Press. Two articles from Chita have been received and will be published on succeeding days. The following article written from the Siberian Border shows that Dr. Zucker is seeing everything with wide-open and unprejudiced eyes and that he does not lack ability in describing what he sees):

ON The Siberian Border, June 24.—Prior to my departure from Harbin I was introduced to a gentleman from Vladivostek en route to Moscow who promised to be my guardian angel as far as Chita. He is the typical Russian revolutionary of the refined type, a small, slight man with an enormous stock of fine gray hair and a well-kept beard, a thin curved nose of Hebraic type and hands that are almost transparent.

On the train we sit down with a dictionary and in the course of the conversation I learn that he was a lawyer in Moscow, from 1903 to 1908, he was exiled to northern-most Siberia where he supported himself by giving lessons in a desperate hole of a town, until he finally managed to escape and to return to Moscow disguised by his beard and his hair which had meanwhile turned gray. He took part in the 1917 revolution and was one of the chief men in the Vladivostok government until the advent of Merkuloff.

He doesn't look forward to changes in Vladivostok in the near future, thinks the Japanese will stay on for a long time to come, but he does not believe that there will be war. He is traveling with an attractive brunette "secretary"—it must have been hard for a délicate epicurean like him to suffer Siberian exile.

The splendid and costly d'ning car service comes to an end at Harbin, but the train has a way of dingering twenty to thirty minutes at larger stations around meal time where there are provided buffets with steaming dishes of appetising soups, meats, and potatoes, which one can wash down with beer, tea, coffee, or milk. The prices are quite reasonable too, a good dinner can be bought for less than two dollars. At smaller stations peasant women with robust figures, such as the Russians grow, offer milk, eggs, and bread for sale, while there is hot water for tea always on tap at even the five minute stops. Less than five minutes the train doesn't stop, and it does that at the least possible excuse.

After the second day out of Harbin has stretched out to an uncanny length and the sun has finally seen fit to retire off this Manchurian plain long after nine o'clock, we reach Manchuria Station or Manchuli. Inspection of passports—I don't give up mine. A Britisher who had inquired about Mr. Crane's arrival slips me through the customs. I then get a droshki whose istrostchik claims to know the address of Mr. Alexandrowski, the local representative of the Far Eastern Republic.

After a drive through streets that look like those of any California motion picture city in which Fairbanks performs we arrive at a barred gate. When it is opened about twenty Chinese and Russian soldiers with fixed bayonets are running out into the yard. I make a butler out of one of the Red Guards by giving my card which he presents in the house after which I am ushered in. There are Mr. Alexandrowski, the type of an enterprising Russian officer, his young and plump wife, a Chinese official of the Allied Technical Board, and his English interpreter. I join them in a cup of tea, am warned that the streets are not safe at night, and decide to stay there instead of going to a hotel. Repeated robberies have taken place in Manchuli lately, and it is for this reason that Alexandrowski has huge automatics on his desk instead of paper weights.

The Chinese leaves with his interpreter and I am thrown on my little Russian for conversation with my host. We express our like and dislikes of Russian authors, and then turn to foreign authors. Of Americans, Alexandrowski likes Jack London and Mark Twain, and of European authors he seems to have read chiefly the philosophers, among them Kant, but I am very much surprised that he as an officer of the guard had read Bakunin, Kropotkin, and Karl Marx. His arguments sound so very much like a soap-boxer's—Russia is the land where laborers wish to go, there are none there out of work, while America has over two million who have to walk the streets.

Would that he understood English! But I know nothing better to say in Russian than that I hope to see how the Russian laborer fares.

The dinner the next day—which according to Russian custom comes at two o'clock just preceding the afternoon nap, is very interesting. The Japanese Major Mike is the other guest and his purpose in calling is to get a permit to go to Chita. Alexandrowski promises to wire about it, but tells him to his face that he wants to go up only to find out the strength of their army and to spy in general. He asks the Japanese what they want in Siberia and the latter disclaims all desire for concesssions. I ask him about what their plans are at Vladivostok, whether they are planning to take the city, whereupon he gives the splendid answer, that this is not the fashion in the twentieth century! I guess Vladivostok will self-determine to be a "free city."

The next morning I stroll down the hot and dusty street on which Mongols and Cossacks, vicious fellows these, gallop along occasionally on their ponies and bedraggled droshkies move an occasional passenger. A savagely bearded group warms the benches in front of the Central Hotel. Suddenly I come upon a stop that styles itself "Wiesser Schneiderei," and when I enter I find three men plying their needles. They certainly look like tailors, one more so than the other. They are all former Austrians, but now they each have a different nationality, and they all prefer to make their living in this forlorn place rather than be sent home to Poland, Czecho-Slovakia or Italy "where there is no work." Besides, two of them are married both here and at home, and from what I saw walking about in the tailor shop it is hard to understand that the ladies at home could possibly have lost out in the contest of beauty.

These men favor the soviet form of government, because everything is done for the worker; for example, he may quit working at fifty and live in a pension at full pay. When asked whether they in Soviet Siberia had seen anybody living on a pension at fifty, they said, no they had not, but then it was the law anyway. According to them the masses favor sovietism, but many grumblers complain about this and that. I think old Mars smiled just one second when he swept these harmless Austrian tailors into this town of Cossacks, Mongols, and Hunghutzes.

They have told me about a Hungarian officer who is supporting himself by giving English lessons and who lives in the last house in the town. The house is one of a row of four that face a fearfully dirty court. A Russian woman receives me, ushers me into the only room beside the kitchen, and tells me that her husband will return soon. She tells me that she is an officer's wife, and has married this prisoner of war a year ago. Her husband then returns, a young, dark, curly-headed Jewish-Hungarian of a very winsome nature. I learn that he is in a terrible situation: former Hungarian and now Rumanian subject. He hates the Rumanians and the Rumanians treat prisoners returning from Russia as suspicious characters; sometimes they even shoot them.

Major Stevenson of the American Red Cross had tried to take him along to America, but former enemy officers can't immigrate for five years to come. He had been the English teacher of Semenoff, and therefore cannot return to Russia—in fact he fled to the border when Semenoff left Chita. Here, I think is a man who ought not to be prejudiced against the former lord of Eastern Siberia, and I therefore bring the conversation around to the regime of Semenoff. Although he admits that personally he was a pleasant Cossack who tried hard to Europeanise himself, that he had been very kind to him personally, yet he pours out the same old story of shootings, whippings to every tenth man when there was a demand of the workers that they be paid their wages long overdue, torture of all suspected of Bolshevism, and medieval cruelty, sadistically employed in the execution of commissars.

He hates the Bolsheviks and uses in connection with them the picturesque expression: "They would like nothing better than to be present at the burial of work." But he is much worse off than his former men, because they can be tailors and shoemakers, but he has been an officer and all he can do now is tutor and wait table. In the neat but very bare room the only article of luxury is his guitar, and I wonder what it strums to this cultured Hungarian on the ghastly winter evenings in folorn Manchuli?

After he had presented me with a thousand and seventy roubles out of the huge store that was to take him back to his home, but which is now absolutely worthless, I go for a walk in the park where a rough-looking band does its best. I meet the English interpreter on the Allied Technical Board. His board, he says, was formed to keep this very important railway out of the hands of the Japs; it is now nobody's and everybody's railway. He speaks very highly of the new manager, Mr. Ostroumoff, who has put some sort of discipline into the service. As to the railway of the Far Eastern Republic to Chita he says that it does about $5,000 worth of business daily while theirs does only $1,000. On his railway everybody rides on free passes, while on the other line there are practically none.

Colonel Johnson, acting head of the Technical Board encourages them to help the Far Eastern Republic as much as possible; he has signed with them an agreement by which freight can be sent straight through without being reloaded at Manchuli. He advises Crane to travel through Russia and trust these people. The Far Eastern Republic, he says, is a government that has just emerged out of seven years of war, it keeps order, and therefore he would say, "Encourage this government, and drop the hopeless Semenoff."

At night when Mr. Crane and his party arrive there is a little turn-out of various Chinese and Russian officials as well as the Customs men. Chita has sent down a callow youth to receive Crane with two private cars—but I presume this boy of sixteen was the only one at their disposal who speaks English and is not a minister buried in work. There is then a little tea in the station restaurant. My last glimpse of it is Mr. Crane at the head of a table lined with uniformed men, and at his right a British Customs official who in this out-of-the-way place seems to listen with real interest to Mr. Crane's stories.

A Visit To The Far Eastern Republic

I.—Conflicting Forces At Harbin—What Japan Wants

BY ORRIN KEITH

The following is the first of a series of articles now being written for the Japan Advertiser by a special contributor who has gone to Chita to investigate conditions in the Far Eastern Republic. The writer has spent two years in the Far East and is well acquainted with the situation in Japan and China. THE CHINA PRESS also has a special representative traveling in Siberia, Dr. A. E. Zucker, of Union Medical College, Peking.

Although it is many miles from Harbin to the nearest territory of the Far Eastern Republic nevertheless one comes into direct contact with many activities which effect the new nation favorably or unfavorably in that city. Harbin is Russian. In spite of its Chinese flags, its Chinese policemen with their huge antiquated revolvers, in spite of the thousands of Chinese who walk its streets and drive its droshkies, Harbin is Russian. Its people are Russian, its stores are Russian, their signs are Russian, its cafes are Russian, and its symphony orchestra is Russian. Yet it belongs to no Russia of today.

SEETHING POT OF "NEWS"

Here are representatives of every school of thought in and out of Russia. Haughty ex-colonels of the Tsar elbow their way past fevered Bolsheviks. Socialist-Revolutionaries argue with Social Democrats, Cadets and peasants have each their own solutions for the grave problems which must be solved in Russia. Though all are represented, the "right" groups greatly predominate. Here in Manchuria they can indulge to their heart's content in schemes and plots, stories and rumors, hopes and aspirations, and there is none to say them nay. While some of these activities are a very real detriment to the struggling Russian governments, for the most part they are wholly without effect in Russia itself. Upon the world outside the influence of these groups is out of all proportion to their real importance. For it is from Harbin that much of the "news" of the Russian Far East is sent to the world's newspapers. "It is reported" and "We are reliably informed" serve as passports to carry to the world many a dream, many a thought fathered by a wish, many a groundless rumor, even many a conscienceless fabrication.

AN OUTPOST OF THE F.E.R.

At Harbin is located one of the few outposts of the Far Eastern Republic. It does the work of a consulate and yet has far greater responsibilities. It is modestly housed in a large white frame residence which has been converted to office use. There is no ostentation either in the direction of luxury or of severe plainness. Even more noticeable, there is none of the delay and red tape which is characteristic of consulates the world over and for which Russian offices of the old days were particularly notorious. Passports are applied for, made out, signed and delivered all in the space of ten minutes! It is just a plain everyday business office with certain work to be done and it does it very efficiently.

The genius who presides over this establishment as the representative of the Far Eastern Republic in Harbin is Ozarnin. A young man, say 30 to 35 he has the quick decision and precise statement of a lawyer. He is tremendously in earnest, sincerely devoted to his work, and gives it time and energy in such generous measure as to entail an early rest or an early grave. His zeal amounts to passion and rest, recreation, sleep and even food are forgotten in the service of his country.

AN EMISSARY FROM CHITA

Good fortune brought me to Harbin when Kojevnikoff was there on his return from Pogranitchnaya, which place was as far as he had been able to go on his way to Vladivostok because of the action of the Japanese. He was living in his private car down near the station. "Private car" sounded very luxurious and brought up visions of polished woodwork, rich furnishings, a suite of servants, and all the other comforts that Pullman can furnish those who are willing to pay. The reality soon dispelled the visions. Kojevnikoff was in a private car to be sure, in the sense that he and his assistants occupied the whole of it, but any semblance of luxury that might have been had long since fled before the necessity for hard and constant work.

Kojevnikoff is the emissary of the Far Eastern Republic to the semi-autonomous government (that was) of the Maritime Province. The nature of his work requires frequent journeys between Vladivostok and the capital at Chita. So he has put his office on wheels and when the necessity arises he can at once put himself en route and his work goes on as usual.

JAPANESE INTERFERENCE

Kojevnikoff was at work last month arranging things for th

A Visit To The Far Eastern Republic

early restoration of commerce in Vladivostok. Matters had reached the stage where conference with the Chita authorities was necessary and Kojevnikoff had gone to the capital when the news of the Merkulov coup reached him. He started back at once to exert whatever pressure he could in putting down the uprising and restoring the elected government. At Pogranitchnaya, the border station between Manchuria and the Maritime Province, he notified the Japanese command of his intention to go to Vladivostok. Such notice was customary in view of the actual Japanese control of the territory. The commandant of the garrison there informed him that he had received a wire from the Chief of the General Staff in Vladivostok covering five points. These were: (1)—The Japanese command does not want Kojevnikoff to go through the occupied zone under its protection to engage in political work in Vladivostok; (2)—If the ten guards accompanying Kojevnikoff are not members of the militia of the Maritime Province the Japanese will be obliged to disarm them; (3)—If Kojevnikoff cares to go without Japanese protection and with his own guards disarmed, he may do so; (4)—Any negotiations which he may desire with the Japanese command can be handled by wire from Pogranitchnaya; (5)—In a few days a member of the Japanese Diplomatic Mission to Vladivostok will be going to Harbin and can stop at Pogranitchnaya to discuss matters there.

It is hardly to be wondered at that Kojevnikoff did not care to accept this offer. After rendering the trip to Vladivostok utterly impossible by depriving him of both Japanese protection and his own, it would only allow him to deal with the situation through the Japanese by wire or else through a member of the Diplomatic Mission who was on his way not to Vladivostok but to Harbin. After this rebuff, it was not at all surprising to find Kojevnikoff ready to denounce in no uncertain terms the interference of the Japanese in the affairs of the people of the Russian Far East.

THE MERKULOV COUP

In spite of his deep resentment at the part which the Japanese had played in the recent coup at Vladivostok, he had the most complete confidence in the final outcome of events in that city. "Merkulov Bros. & Co.," as he characterised the new government, were, according to him, merely a crowd of bandit traders who were using the present opportunity to sell off government property, get money on concessions, and make the most for themselves generally during what was bound to be a short tenure of office. No large or responsible section of the population was back of them and their present success could never have been achieved except through the aid of the Japanese.

Kojevnikoff was preparing to start again for Vladivostok, the Japanese by this time having decided that their original refusal to give him protection was not the best course.

JAPANESE DIPLOMACY

It was a far cry from the plain, even blunt sincerity of Kojevnikoff to the polished diplomatic suavity of Shimada, a member of the Japanese Diplomatic Mission to Vladivostok, who was in Harbin at the time. In the luxurious quarters of the Japanese Consulate, Shimada received us with Japanese cordiality. He speaks Russia fluently and English only less so. Every statement was carefully thought out and gave the impression of being watchfully guarded. Frequently his answer was emphasised as his personal opinion and not that of the Diplomatic Mission or of the Imperial Government.

In regard to the Vladivostok coup, he explained that under the agreement between the Japanese Military Command and the Antonov government at Vladivostok, no armed Russian troops were to be allowed in the zone of Japanese occupation. This agreement, he repeated, had not been abrogated by the Government of the Far Eastern Republic. The Japanese therefore, in accordance with this agreement, had disarmed everybody in the region occupied by them. The Kappelists, taking advantage of this situation, had come in and, by main force, taken possession of the government offices, driven out the elected officials and established a new government.

The people of Vladivostok were not behind the Kappelists, Mr. Shimada stated. He did not know what the people of Vladivostok wanted and he did not believe they did. They all have two flags, one the red flag of the Republic, and the other the tricolor of the old regime, and they hang out one or the other as occasion demands.

SEMENOFF'S ARRIVAL

One morning shortly after the coup, a Japanese steamer with Semenoff on board was discovered to be anchored next to a Japanese cruiser.

"It is very strange," he explained, "he is always close by the Japanese. It would be better if he would go to Habarovsk or somewhere to carry his activities but he insists on staying in the Japanese zone. It makes it very bad." The Consular body, the Japanese Diplomatic Mission and the Japanese Military Command all protested against Semenoff landing in Vladivostok but he went up a few miles to Okyanskaya and landed anyway much to the displeasure of all of them.

Asked if it would not be a good thing to let the troops of the Far Eastern Republic come into the zone of Japanese occupation to settle Semenoff, he replied that that could not be done as the agreement before mentioned would require the Japanese to disarm the Far Eastern Republic troops so they could preserve peace and quiet in the neighborhood of Vladivostok.

"But if the Far Eastern Republic troops resisted the attempt to disarm them, then what would the Japanese do?"

"Ah, your question is most interesting to us and it would be very hard for the Japanese Military Command to decide."

"If they tried to disarm these troops in spite of their resistance, would it not cause tenfold the disorder that would result from allowing them to drive out the Semenoff bands?"—"Ah, yes. It would be very difficult to decide."

WHAT JAPAN WANTS

Asked what Japan wanted in Siberia, Mr. Shimada replied: "Peace and order so she can develop her commercial interests."

"But her present course is building up a hatred on the part of the Russians of the Far East which will be far more detrimental to Japan's commercial development than a transient internal disorder; a distrust that will be far more effective than the Chinese boycott."

"Yes," he rejoined, "but the Japanese people fear the spread of Bolshevism. We who are in touch with affairs and know them at first hand know there is no danger from that direction but the people, less well-informed, fear it."

"Is the Japanese Government doing anything to allay this groundless fear on the part of their people?"

"Ah, no. The Military Command fear it also."

"But by irritating the Russian people by military occupation, disarming their troops, interfering in their domestic affairs, etc., are the Japanese not driving the Siberians into the arms of Soviet Russia? Would not immediate withdrawal and friendly action toward the new state do far more to defend Japan against the advance of Bolshevism than the opposite course?"

"Personally," said Mr. Shimada, "I agree with that contention absolutely, but we are not permitted to state the attitude of our Government on the matter."

"That is what makes it so hard for the friends of Japan to answer the charge that Japan's object in Siberia is territorial aggression."

The denial came promptly: "Ah, Japan has no desire whatever for more territory."

"Why then is it impossible to give a reasonable and satisfactory justification for the continued occupation?"

"Personally I agree with you perfectly, but it is a very difficult question."
